

William Colenso College Parents' Association

A friendly group of parents and school supporters meets about every 6 weeks (holidays allowing) to hear about and discuss current school events and issues.

In the past, the Parents' Association has raised many thousands for the school with fundraisers such as book sales.

Currently, our focus is organising events to raise awareness of the school and empower our community. We do this by inviting speakers to come to the school and provide an evening of entertainment/information.

Past speakers have included Maori education academic Mere Berryman, the head of the Royal New Zealand Navy David Proctor (a Colenso alumnus), psychologist Melissa Viviers and Ironmaori founder Heather Skipworth. These are free, informal evenings which have proved very popular. We provide tea/coffee and cake and people from throughout the community attend.

If you'd like to know more about joining our happy little group please contact the school office on 831 0180.
